

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to require that their stations air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. News interest must be unbiased and serve the needs of the general public.

This action indicates the reason we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. It further illustrates why the license renewal process needs to be reviewed.